

11 BUNGALOW BEAUTY

Charged with the task of turning an Atlanta home's cavernous living room into a breath of fresh air, designer Meridy King started with a neutral backdrop of whites and textured creams. She then added subtle yet playful sky-blue prints, which read much like neutrals amid the restrained scheme. Touches of dark wood and black accent pieces ground the scheme, but Meridy kept the tranquil vibe with a few thoughtfully placed accents for the mantel and coffee table.

12 OUTDOOR RESPITE

Versatility is what Fort Lauderdale designer Tracy Dunn loves most about the pairing of blue and white. For her screened-in porch, she blended four fabric patterns seamlessly to create a classic motif that's easy to update with green or coral accents and colorful, seasonal flowers. She converted a pair of vintage foo dog statues into lamps and topped them with custom lampshades in a calming blue to complement the vibrant textiles. Keeping the blue shades in the same family helps to unify the disparate prints.
